

MYTH

You need permission to use copyright works for a school project.

REALITY

In the UK there are copyright exceptions which permit the use of copyright material for educational use under certain circumstances.

Usually educational institutions also pay for specific licences which enable their teachers and students to use copyright material.